New Leadership Proposed for Anchorage Assembly
Claman, Selkregg to serve as Chair, Vice-Chair

The Anchorage Assembly is moving forward under new leadership. Assembly members Matt Claman and Sheila Selkregg announced today they will be asking their colleagues to support them as the body's new Chair and Vice-Chair. The Assembly will vote next Tuesday night on the proposed leadership team.

Claman and Selkregg made the announcement at a news conference in the Assembly Conference Room at City Hall.

The two reported they have met with the Assembly's newest elected members; Harriett Drummond, Patrick Flynn, Elvi Gray-Jackson and Mike Gutierrez. The new members asked Claman to serve as Chair and Selkregg to serve as Vice-Chair.

"We are ready to work cooperatively with the Administration, the entire Assembly and the community to serve the best interests of Anchorage," Claman said.

"The new members bring diverse skills, experience and perspective to the Assembly," Selkregg said. "They share our commitment to serving all of Anchorage."

Claman and Selkregg said the most important issues facing the community are public safety, continued sound financial management, education, property taxes, and community and economic development. They will also give considerable attention to moving the Title 21 process forward.

The swearing-in of the Assembly's new members and election of the new leadership will take place at the next meeting, April 15. Other committee appointments will be made at the April 29 meeting.
