ANCHORAGE.

WHEREAS, Carolyn "Linny" Pacillo, an Anchorage resident and political activist,

WHEREAS, she was widely known around Anchorage as one of the 'Parking Fairies' who fought authority with a tutu and fairie wings; and influencing local politics through compassion and humor – these acts, and the manner by which they were applied – won her the affection of many Anchorage citizens; and purposeful altruism can alter government policy and make life better for individuals living in a democratic society; and
